Fun at the Playground

Listen! Did you know that every single person and every single thing in the whole world has a name? Big things? Little things? Here are some things Morty, Ferdie, Huey, Dewey, and Louie like best. Do you know their names?

climbing bars
swing
drinking - fountain
ball sandbox
bat
fort doll
shovel blocks

People at Work

People who work have special names, too. This firefighter has come just in time to save Mickey's barbecue.

"Whew!" Mickey says. "I'm really glad to see you!"

"Where's the nearest bank?" Uncle Scrooge asks the police officer who is directing traffic. "I want to make a small deposit."

"Th-that way, sir!" the officer exclaims. He can hardly believe what he sees in Scrooge's car.

Can you see some other people at work in this picture?

More People at Work

"Listen carefully, class," the teacher says. "This is a very important lesson."

Huey and Louie write down everything the teacher says. But what is Dewey doing? Do you think he hears what the teacher is saying?

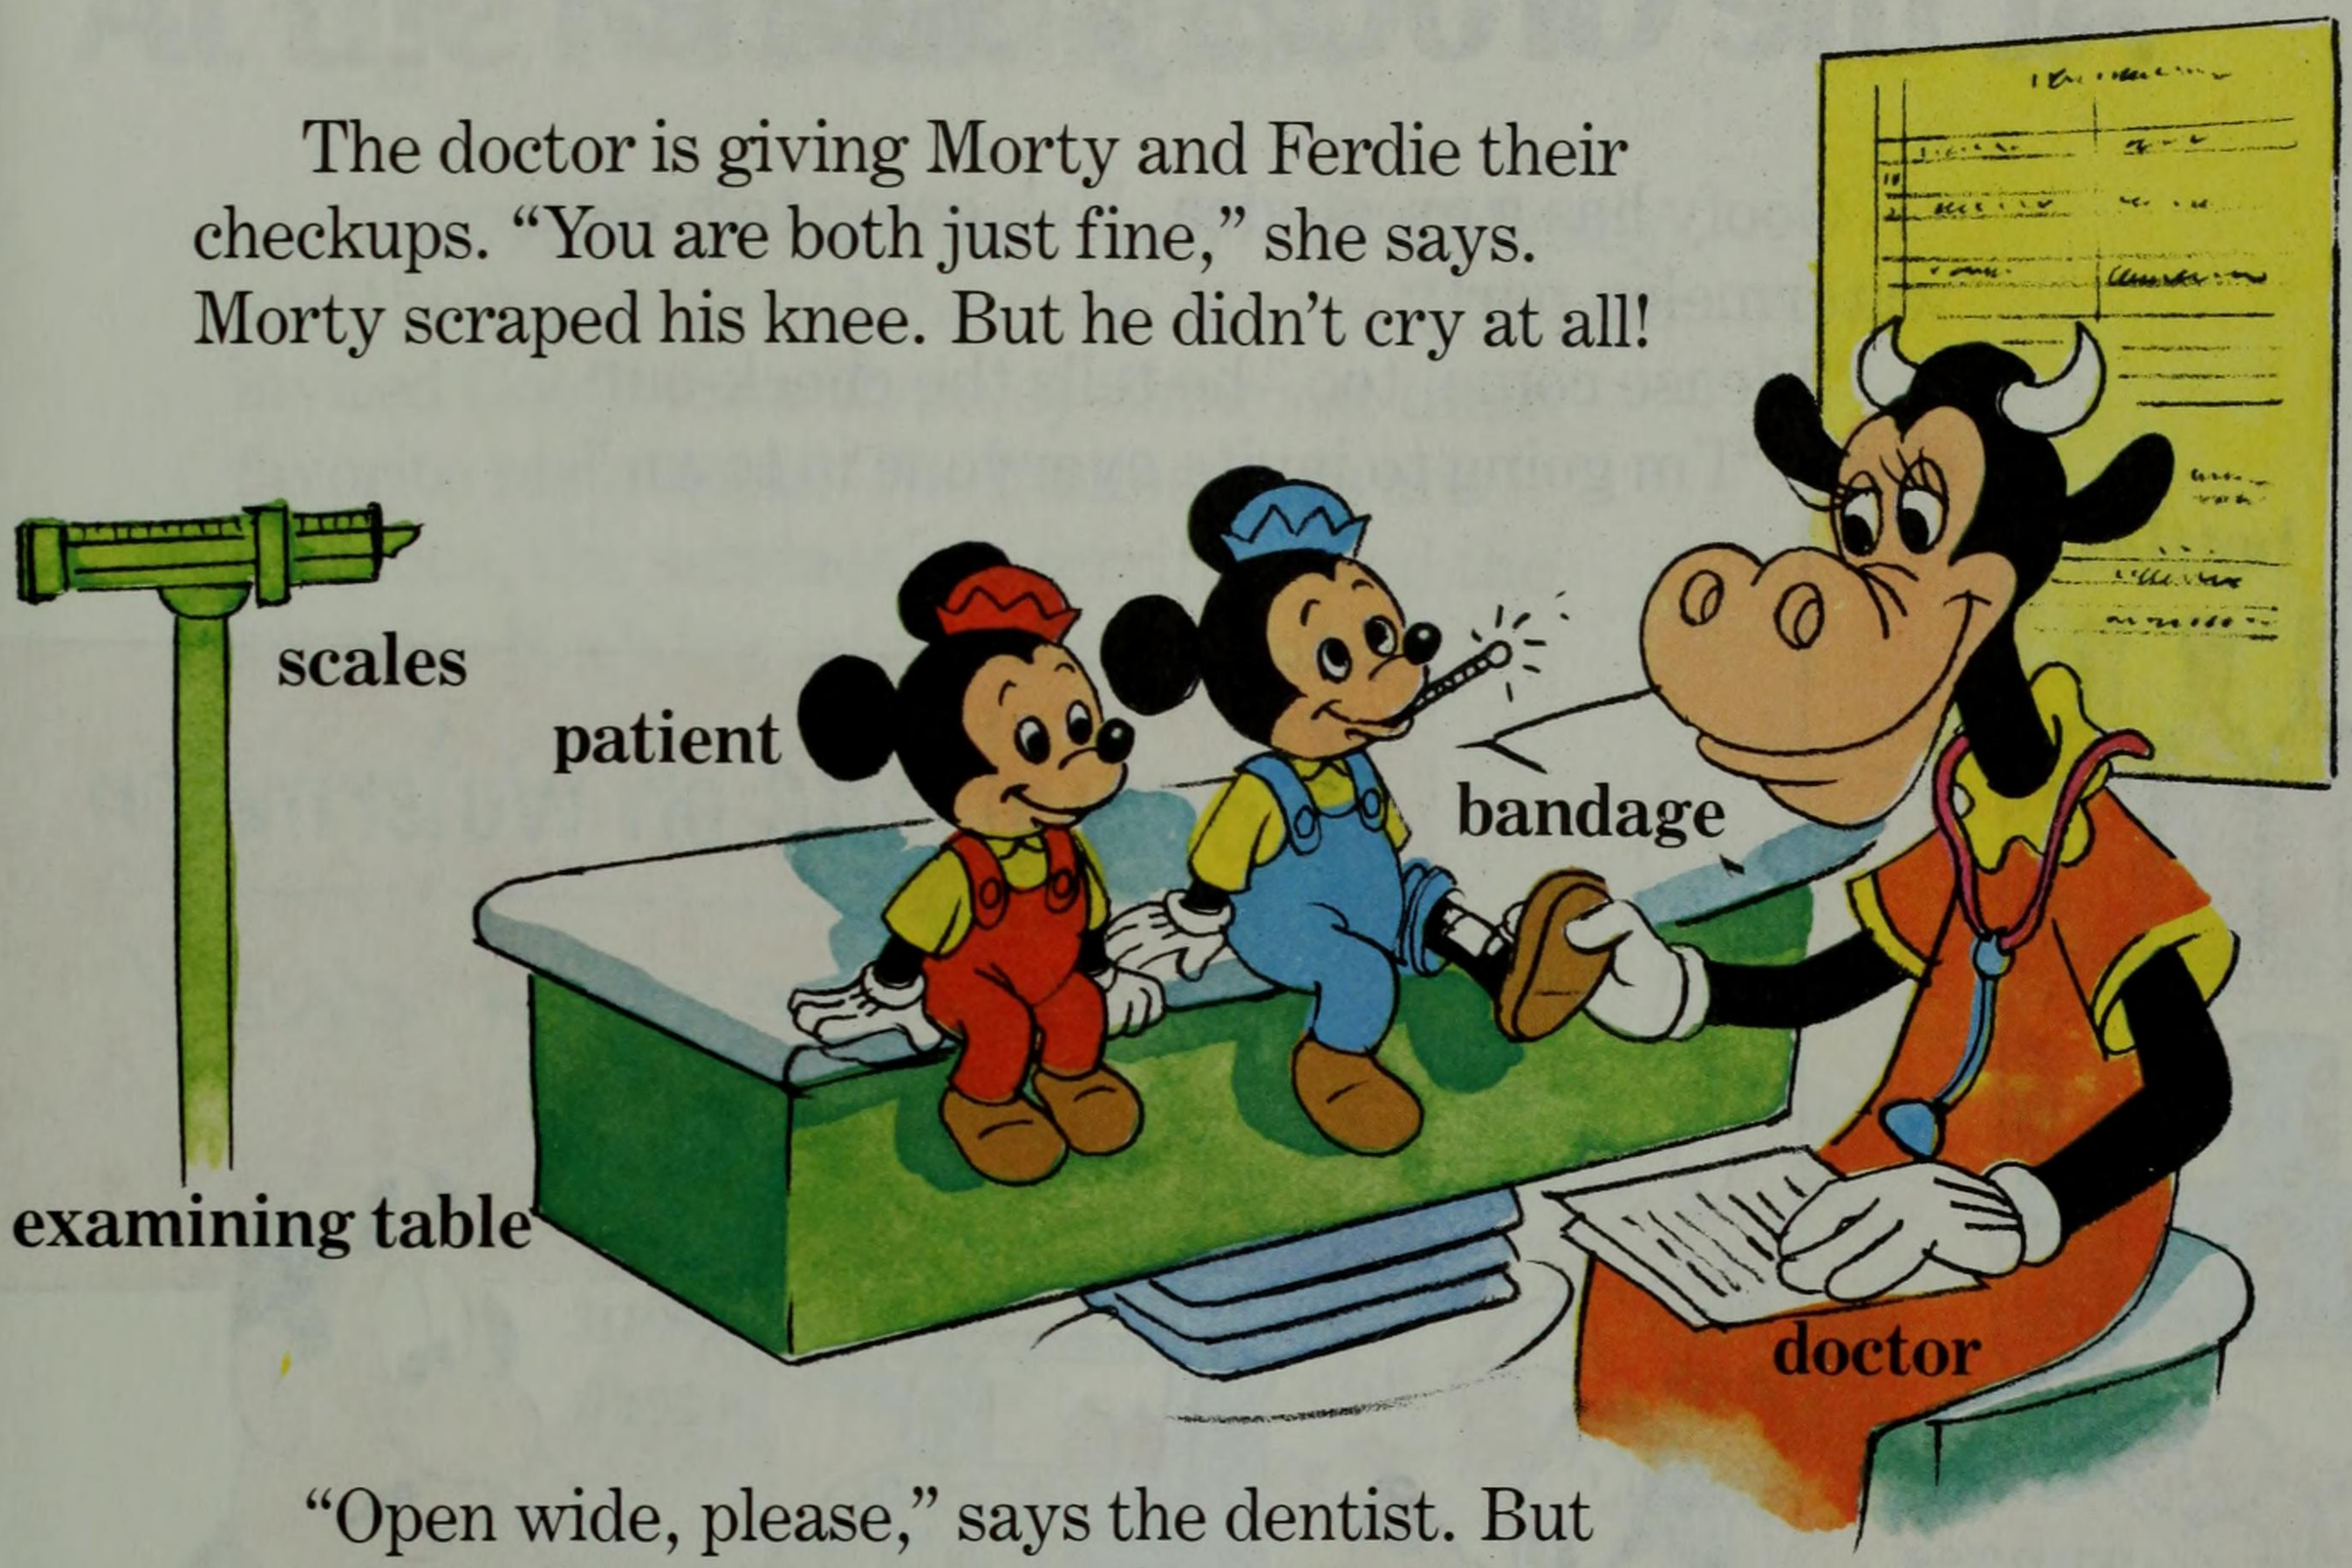
The doctor is giving Morty and Ferdie their checkups. "You are both just fine," she says. Morty scraped his knee. But he didn't cry at all!



"Open wide, please," says the dentist. But look at Goofy's teeth! The dentist doesn't know where to begin!

Does your dentist's office look like this one?

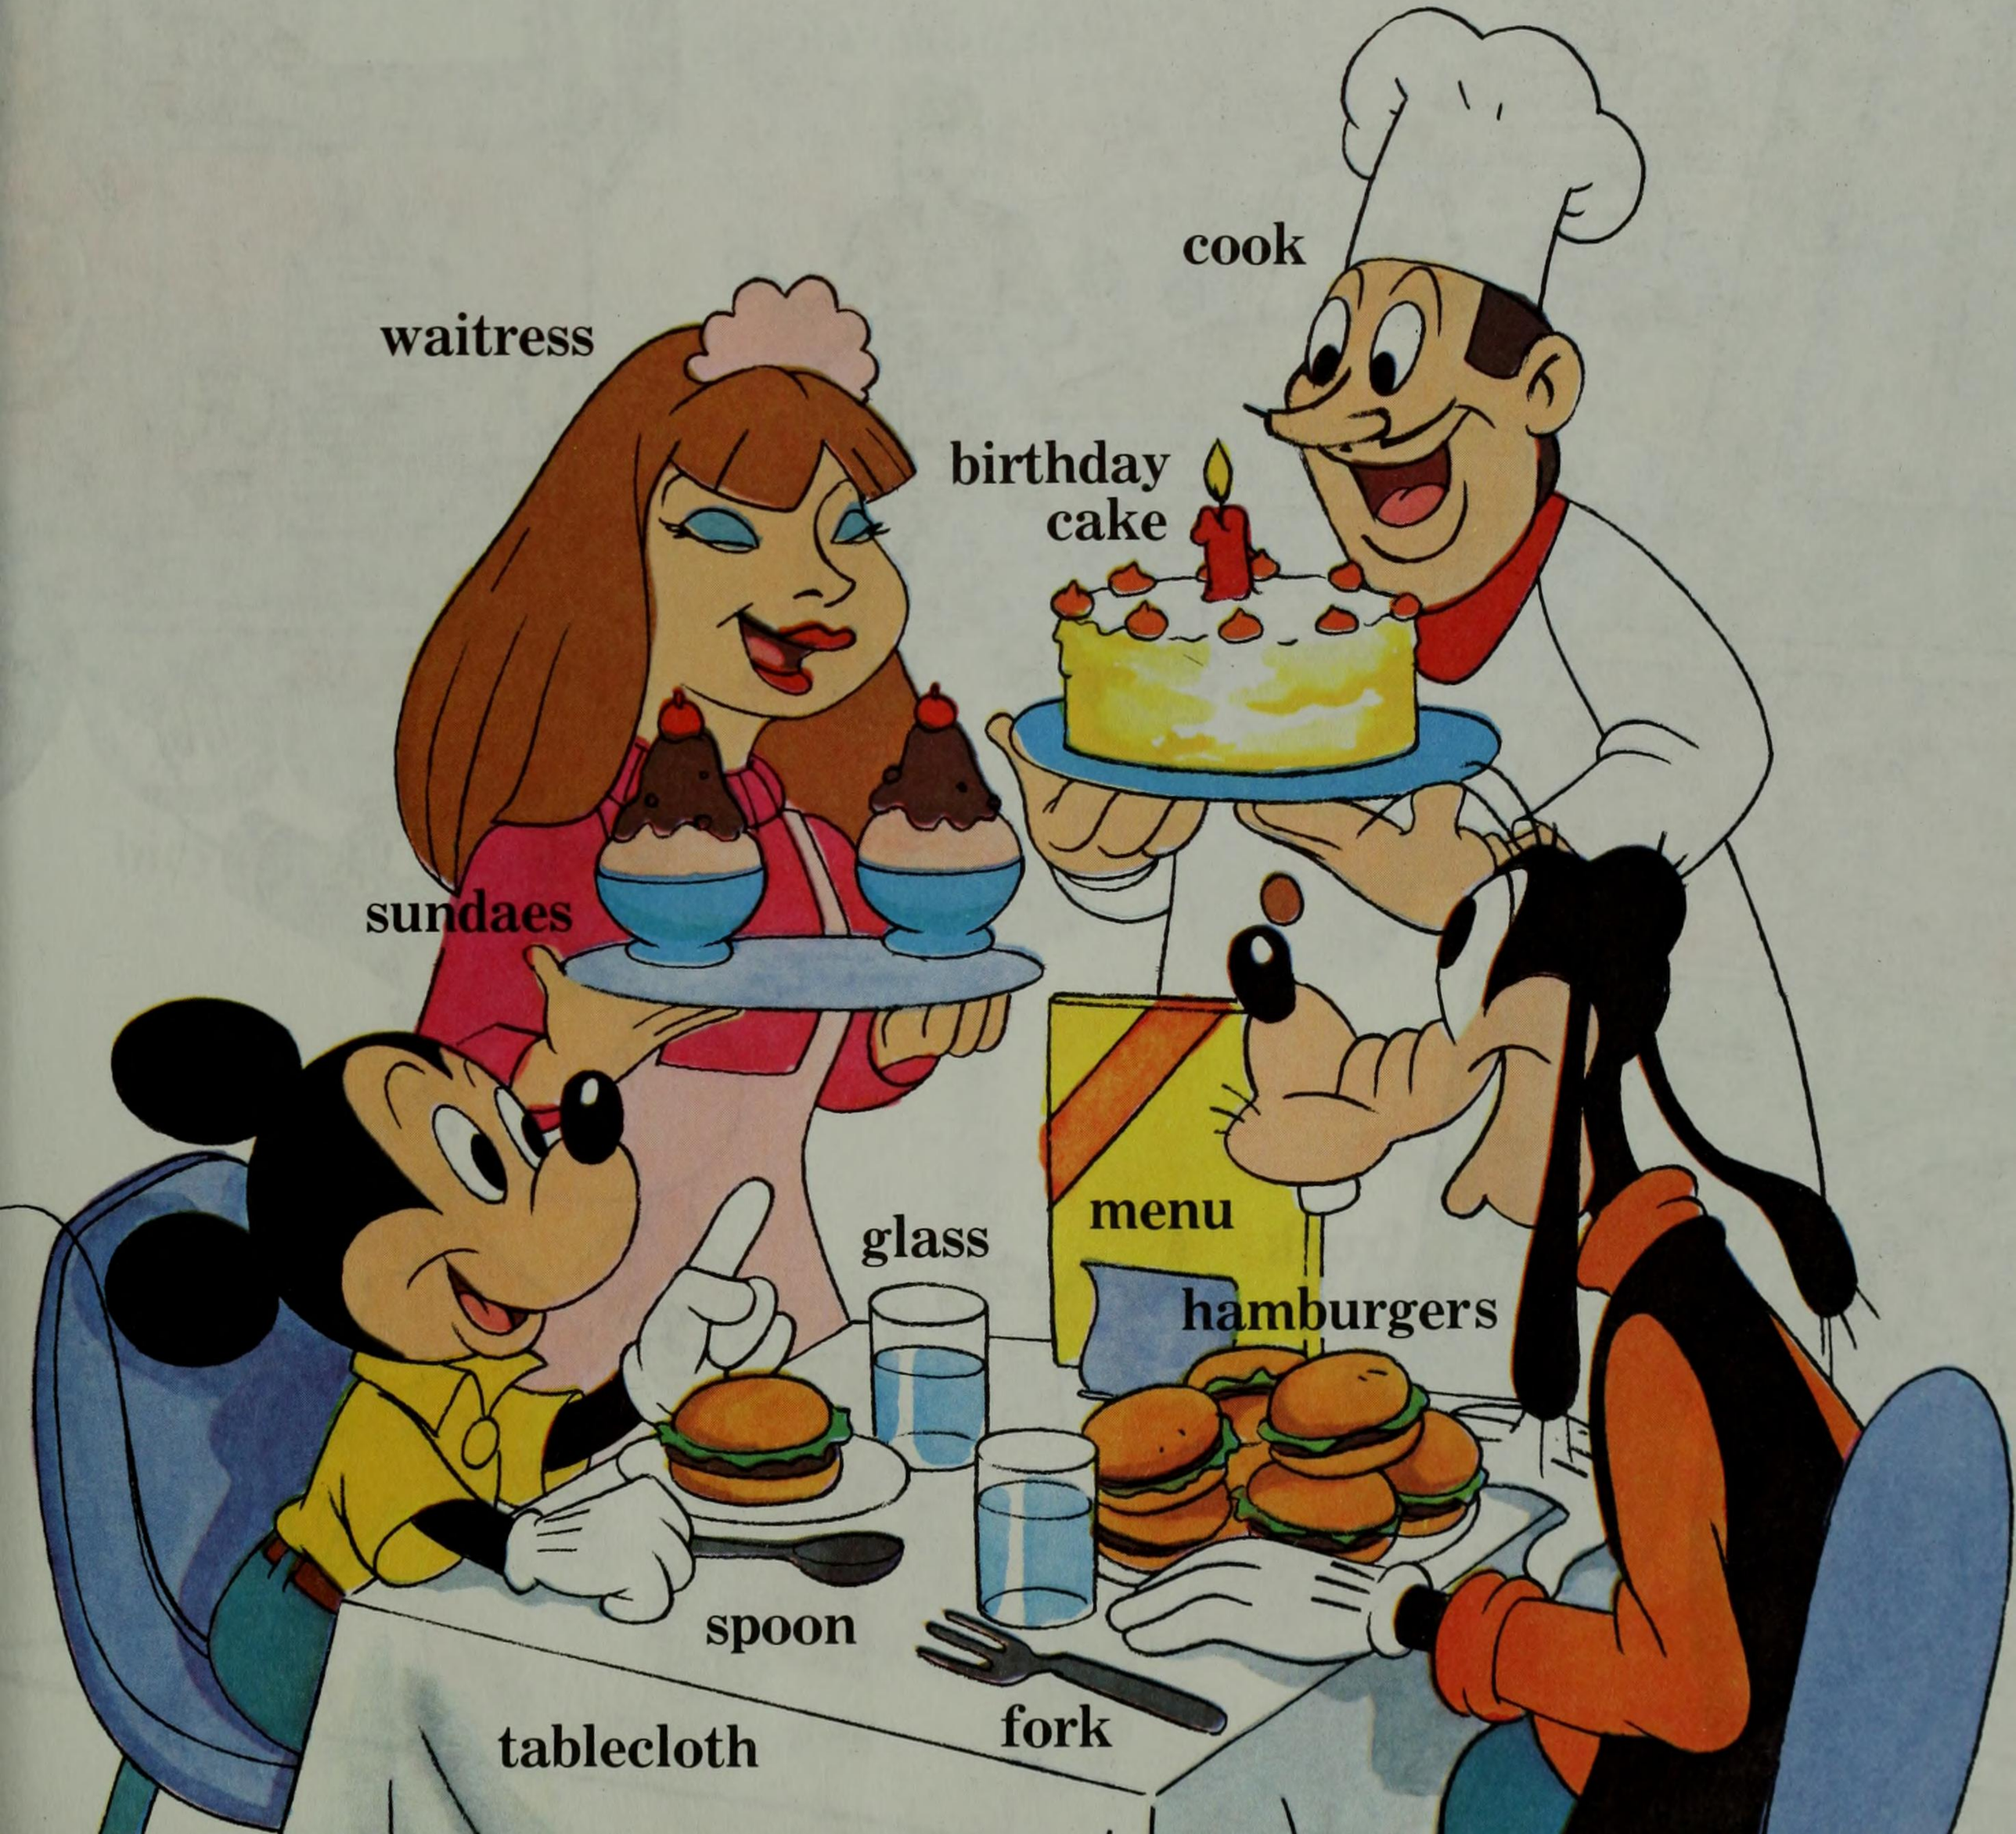
At the Grocery Store

Goofy has a great idea. He's going to have a watermelon party.

"Please come, too," he tells the check-out clerk. "I'm going to invite everyone in town."

At the Restaurant

"Happy birthday, dear Goofy!" sing Mickey and the waitress and the cook. Mickey has invited Goofy for a birthday dinner at their favorite restaurant. The hamburgers are delicious, the sundaes are terrific—and the surprise birthday cake is the best of all.



Things That Go

"Stop!" Donald signals. Now the mother cat and her frisky kittens can cross the busy street. All around them are big machines that take people where they want to go. How many can you name?

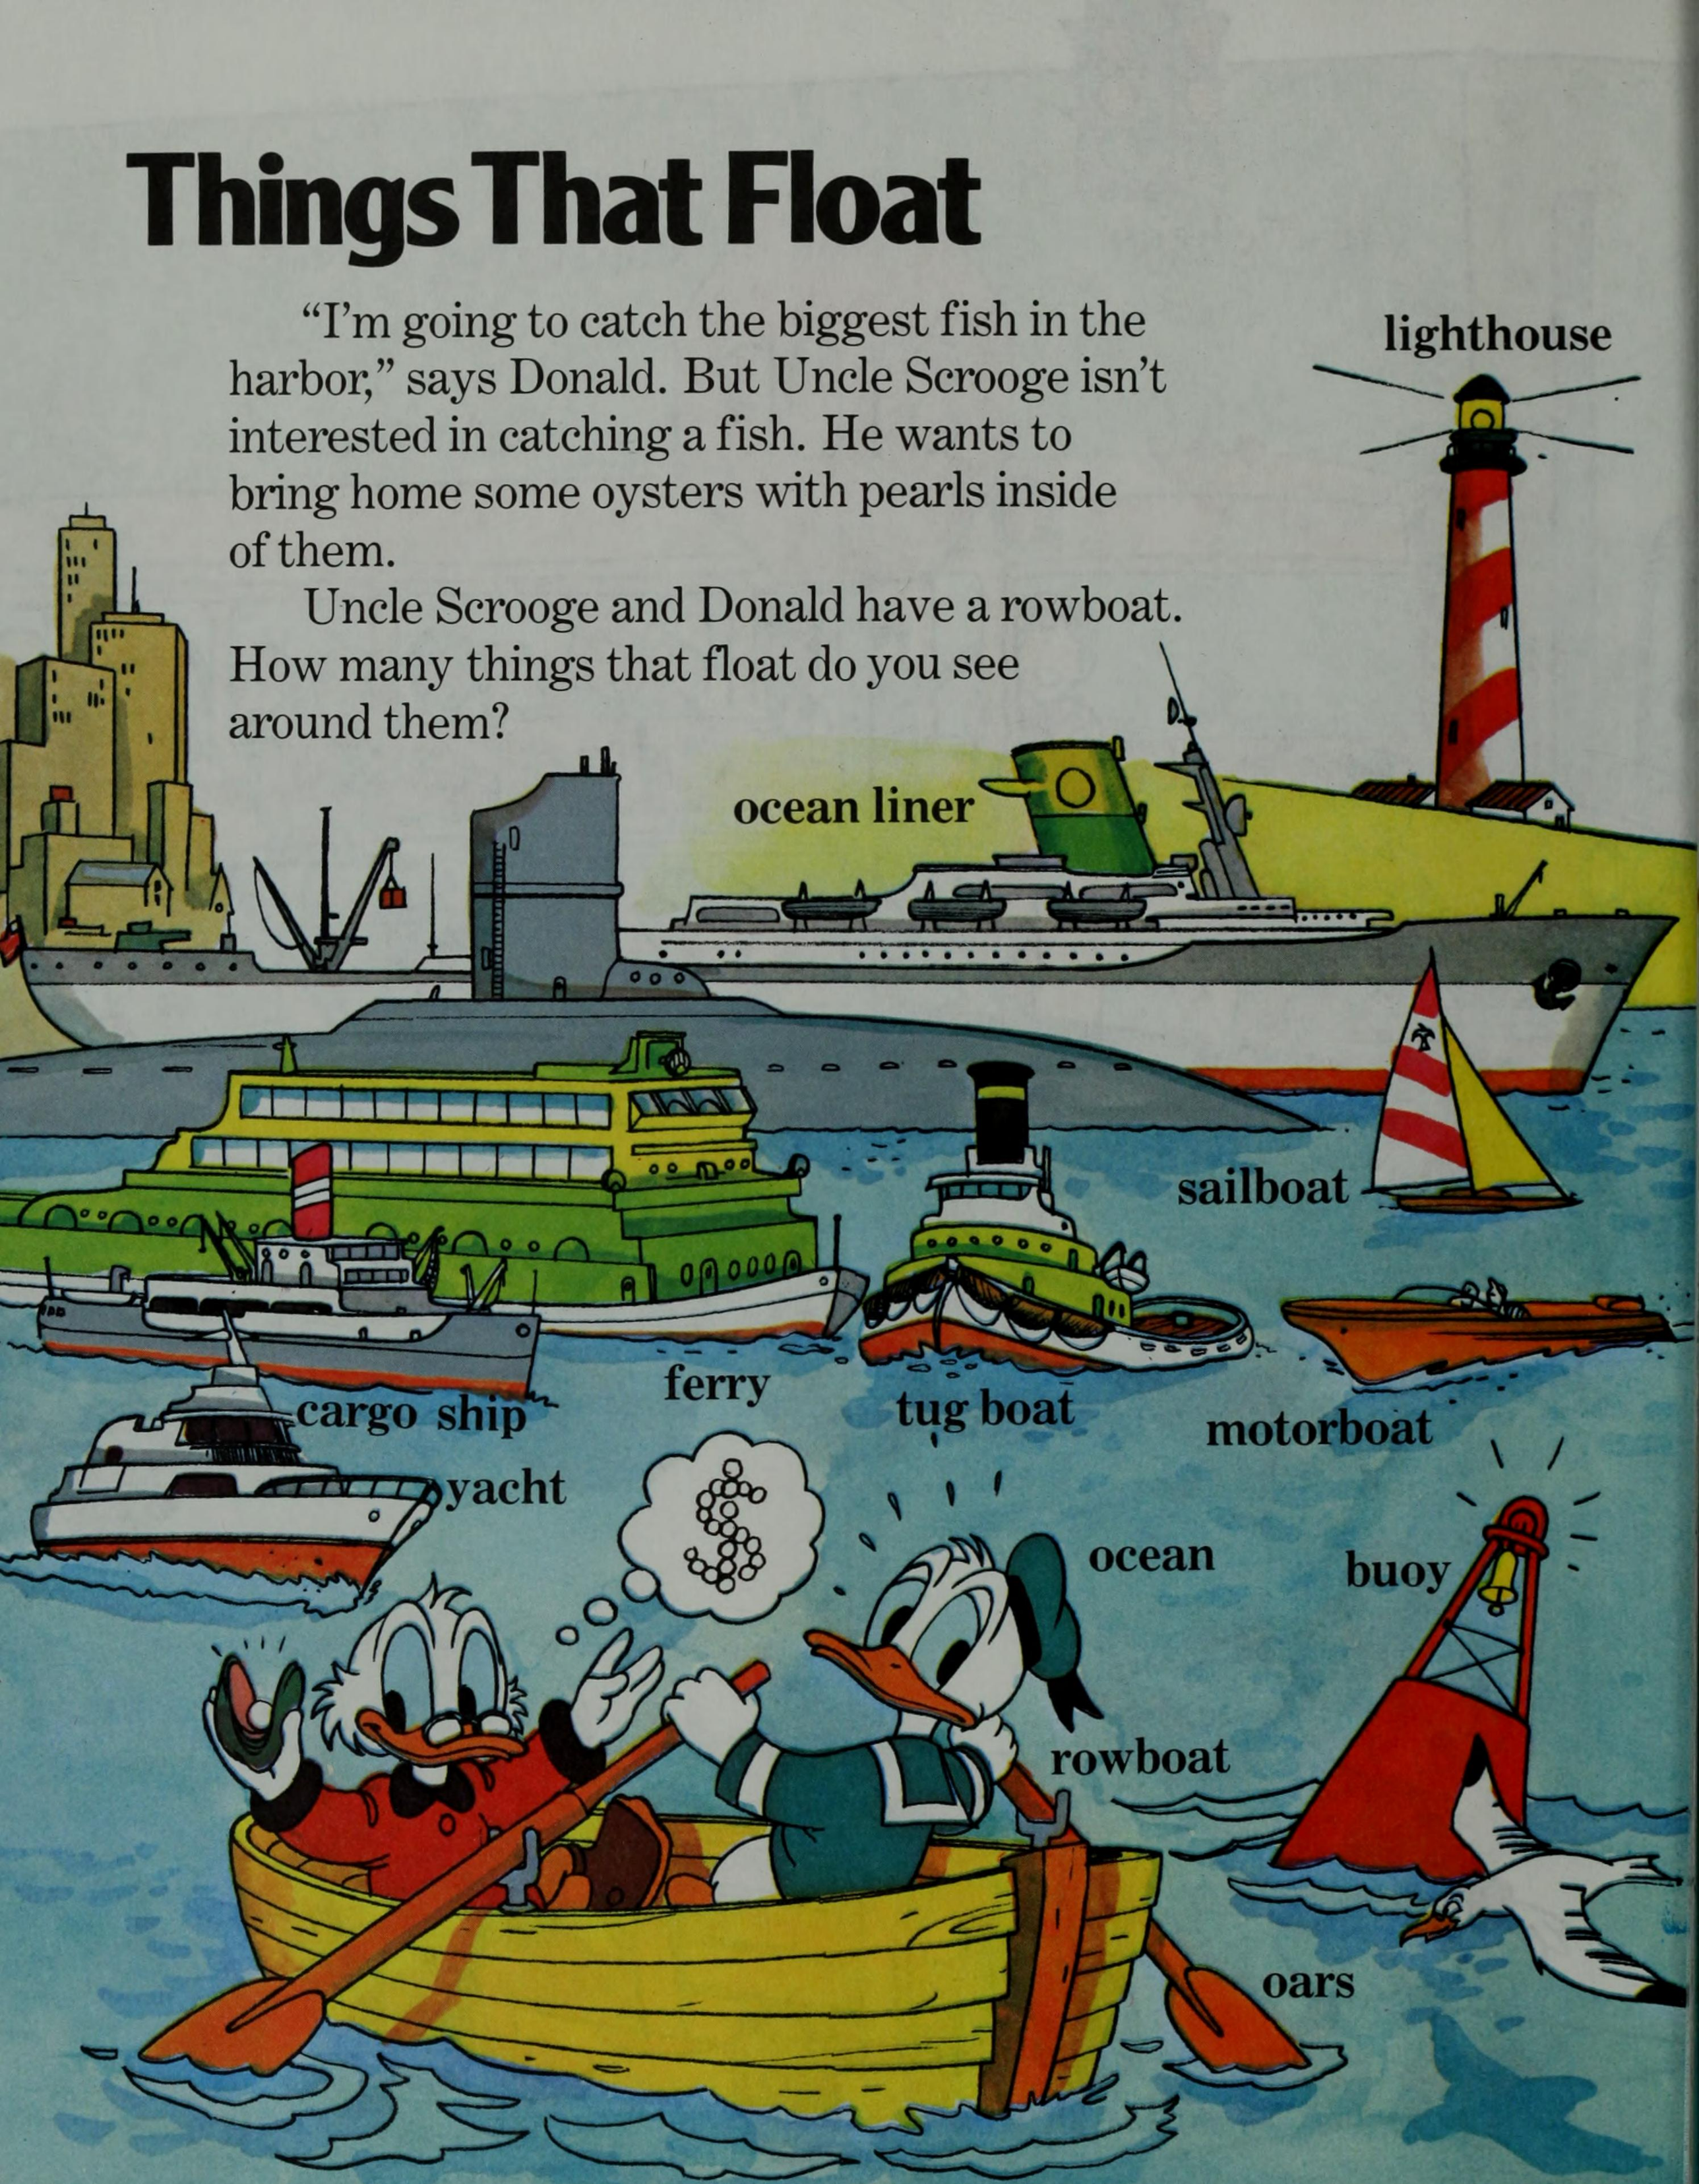
Things That Float

"I'm going to catch the biggest fish in the harbor," says Donald. But Uncle Scrooge isn't interested in catching a fish. He wants to bring home some oysters with pearls inside of them.

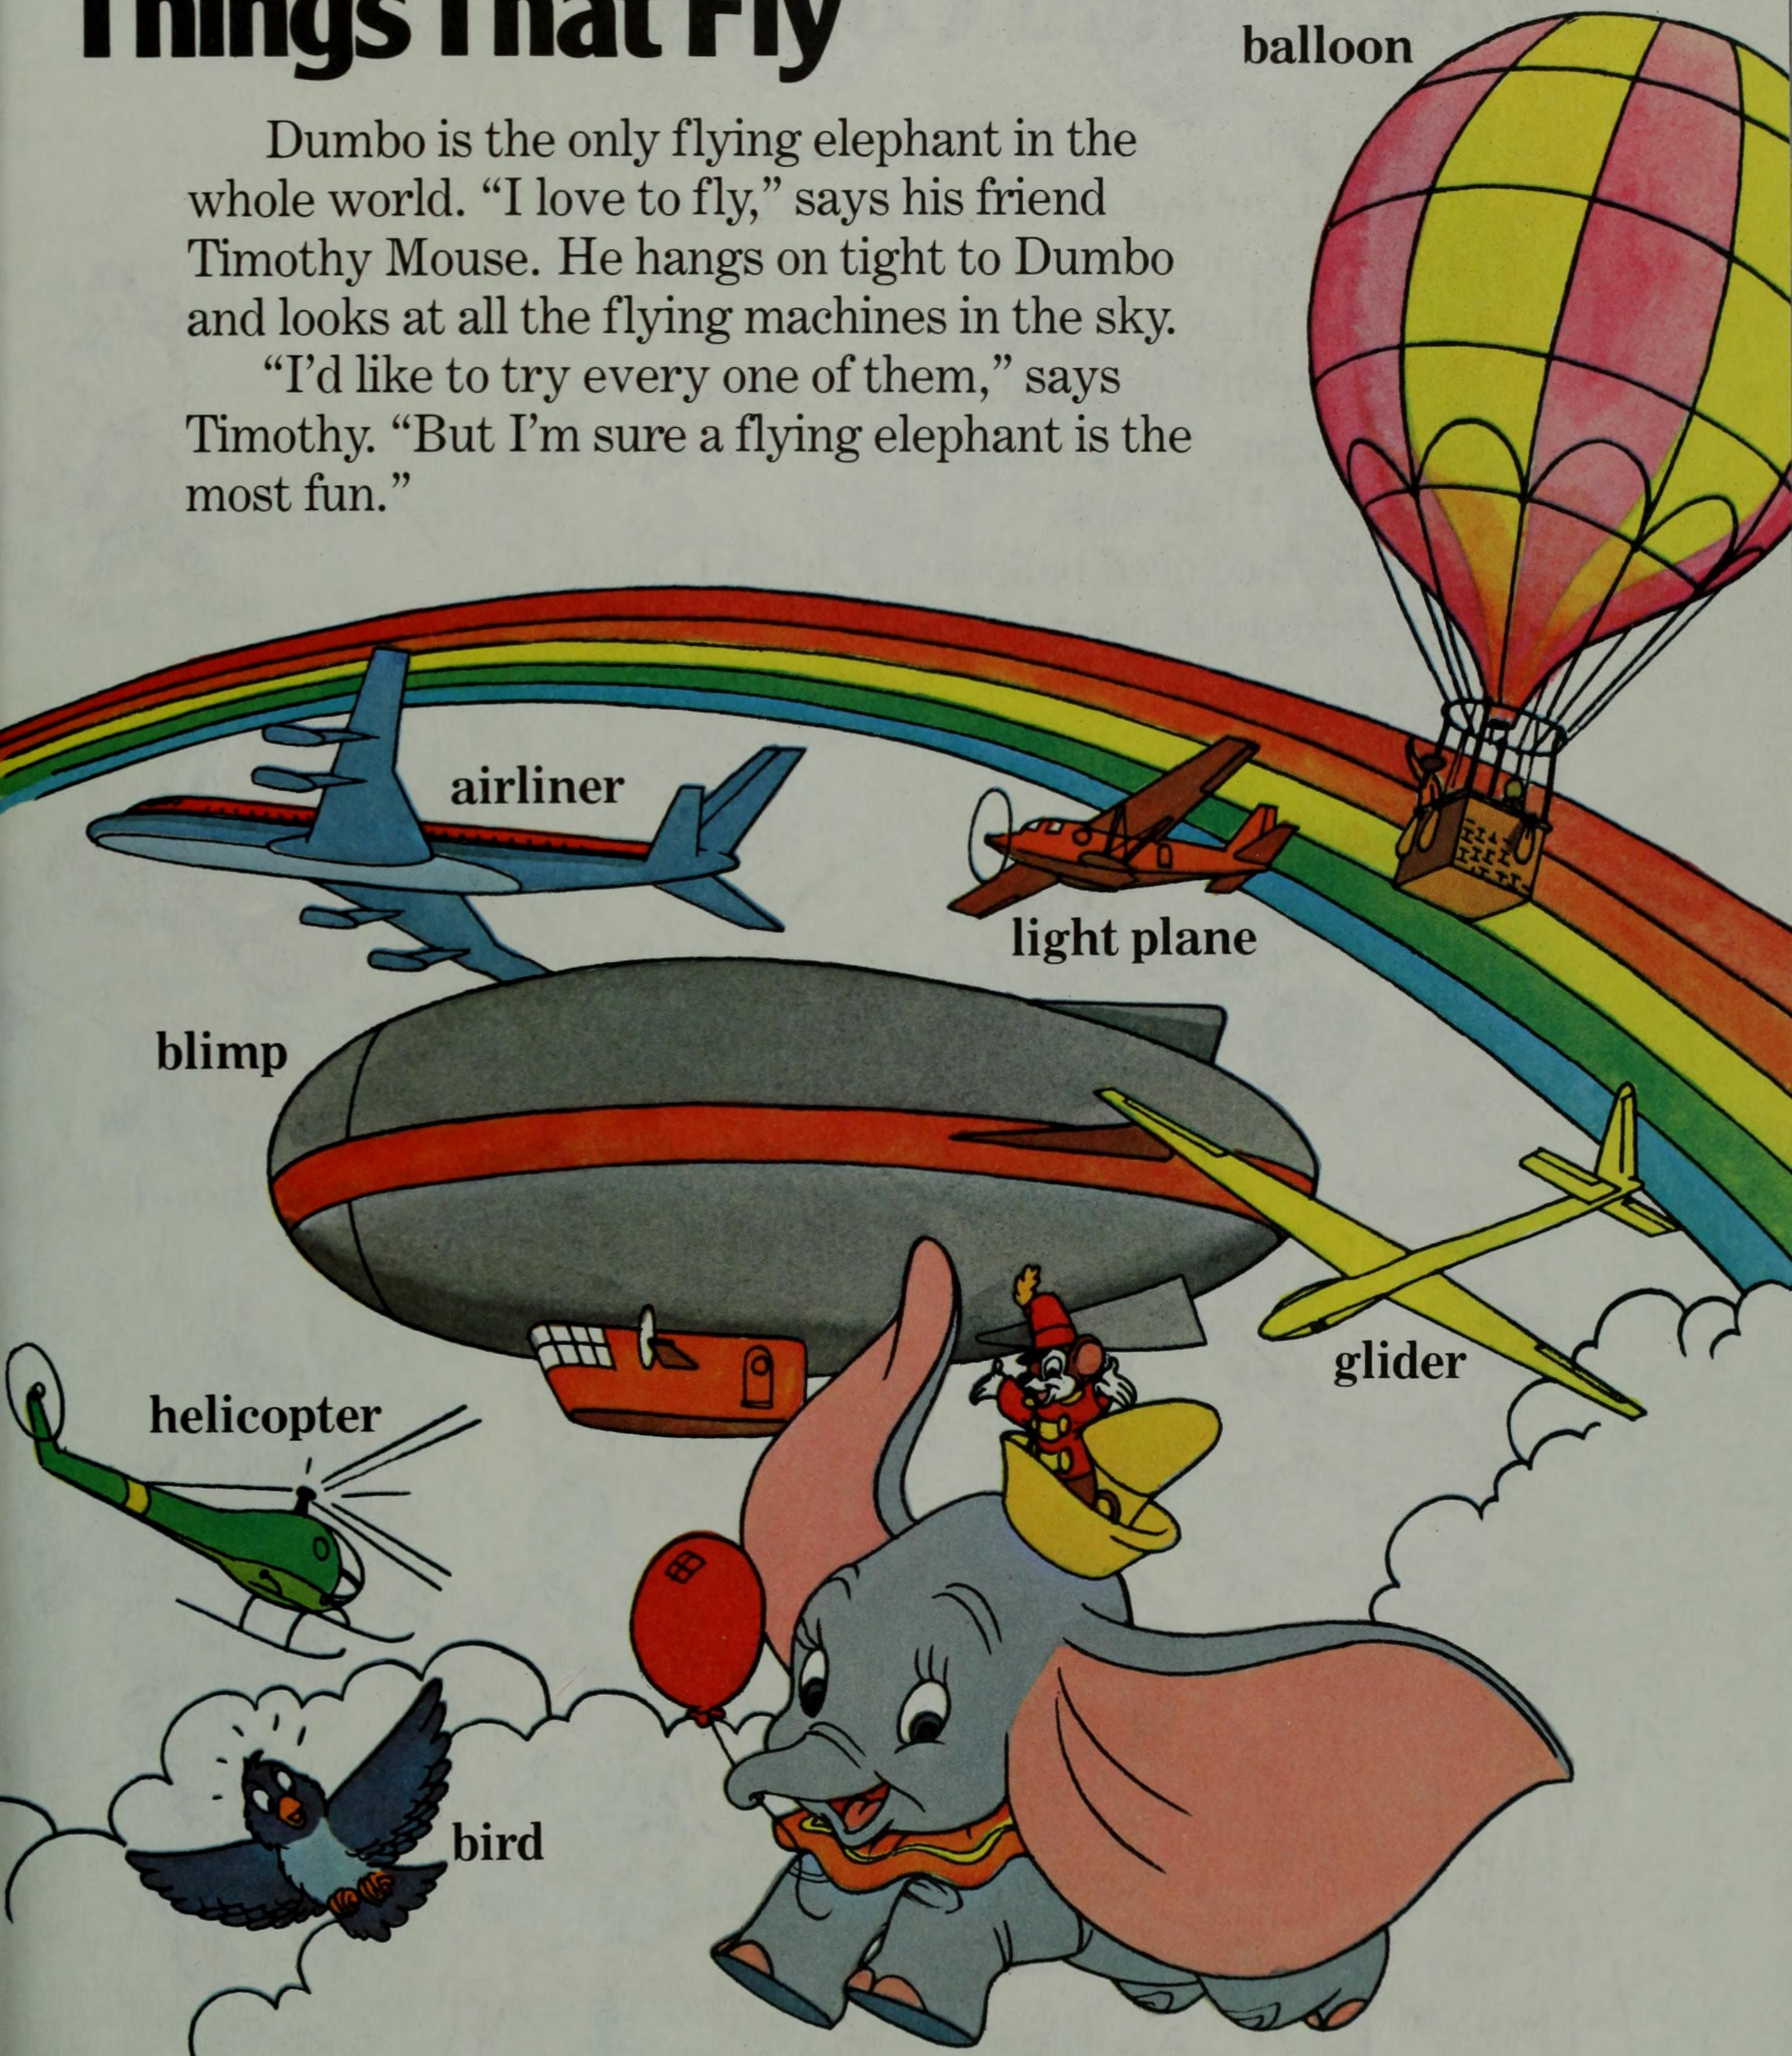
Uncle Scrooge and Donald have a rowboat. How many things that float do you see around them?



Things That Fly

Dumbo is the only flying elephant in the whole world. "I love to fly," says his friend Timothy Mouse. He hangs on tight to Dumbo and looks at all the flying machines in the sky.

"I'd like to try every one of them," says Timothy. "But I'm sure a flying elephant is the most fun."



Shapes and Colors

"Play ball!" shouts Mickey Mouse. He is up at bat for the All-Star team. Daisy Duck pitches for the True Hearts. She throws a fast ball, and Mickey swings.

"Hurrah for the All-Stars!" cheers the balloon man. "If they win, I'll fill the sky with my colored balloons."

Which colored balloon would you choose? How many different shapes do you see in the ball park?

Families

People have families who love them, and animals have families, too. Lady and Tramp and their puppies live with Jim Dear and Darling and their baby. They have wonderful times together.

"But goodness!" Darling exclaims. "Look at your puppies, Lady! I never saw babies so full of mischief!"

Woodland Animals

"Watch me jump," Bambi tells his woodland friends.
"I like to jump, too," says Thumper the rabbit.
"The name of the game is leapfrog," says the frog.
Some of the animals would rather watch than play. The skunk is busy smelling the flowers. Careful, skunk, that bee is watching you! Do you know the names of all the animals in the picture?

At the Pet Show

Morty and Ferdie have entered Pluto in a pet show. They hurry to get in line for the judging. Do you know the names of all the pets shown here?

Soon the judge chooses his favorite pets.

Hurray! Pluto wins the blue ribbon! Who has won the red ribbon? The yellow ribbon? Is there a pet that you like best of all?

Every day, Christopher Robin uses his eyes and ears to see and hear the friends he likes best. Every day, they talk together and play games.

"Good morning, dear Pooh," says Christopher Robin. "Good morning, Rabbit." Then Christopher Robin and Rabbit stretch their legs and go for an early-morning run through the Hundred-Acre Wood.

Spring

"Spring, spring, sparkly spring!" sings Pooh. In the spring he plants his garden, and Kanga comes to help him clean house. Their friends are busy, too. It is nearly Easter, and Rabbit and Piglet are practicing for the Easter egg hunt. "Look what I've found," says Rabbit.

Tigger flies a kite. Little Roo gets out his jump rope and jumps thirty-one times without stopping.

Summer

Summer is the time to swim and have fun. "Watch me dive!" shouts Donald. Huey hurries to swim out of his way.

Daisy and Louie set the table for a Fourth of July picnic lunch. The guests can watch the fireworks as they eat. Do you think Uncle Scrooge will wake up in time for the picnic?

Fall

When fall comes, it's time to think about Halloween fun. "Trick or treat! We love to eat!" shout Tigger, Piglet, and Rabbit.

Can you find the ghost, the cowboy, and the pirate in the picture? Pooh has jars of his best honey to put into their trick-or-treat bags.

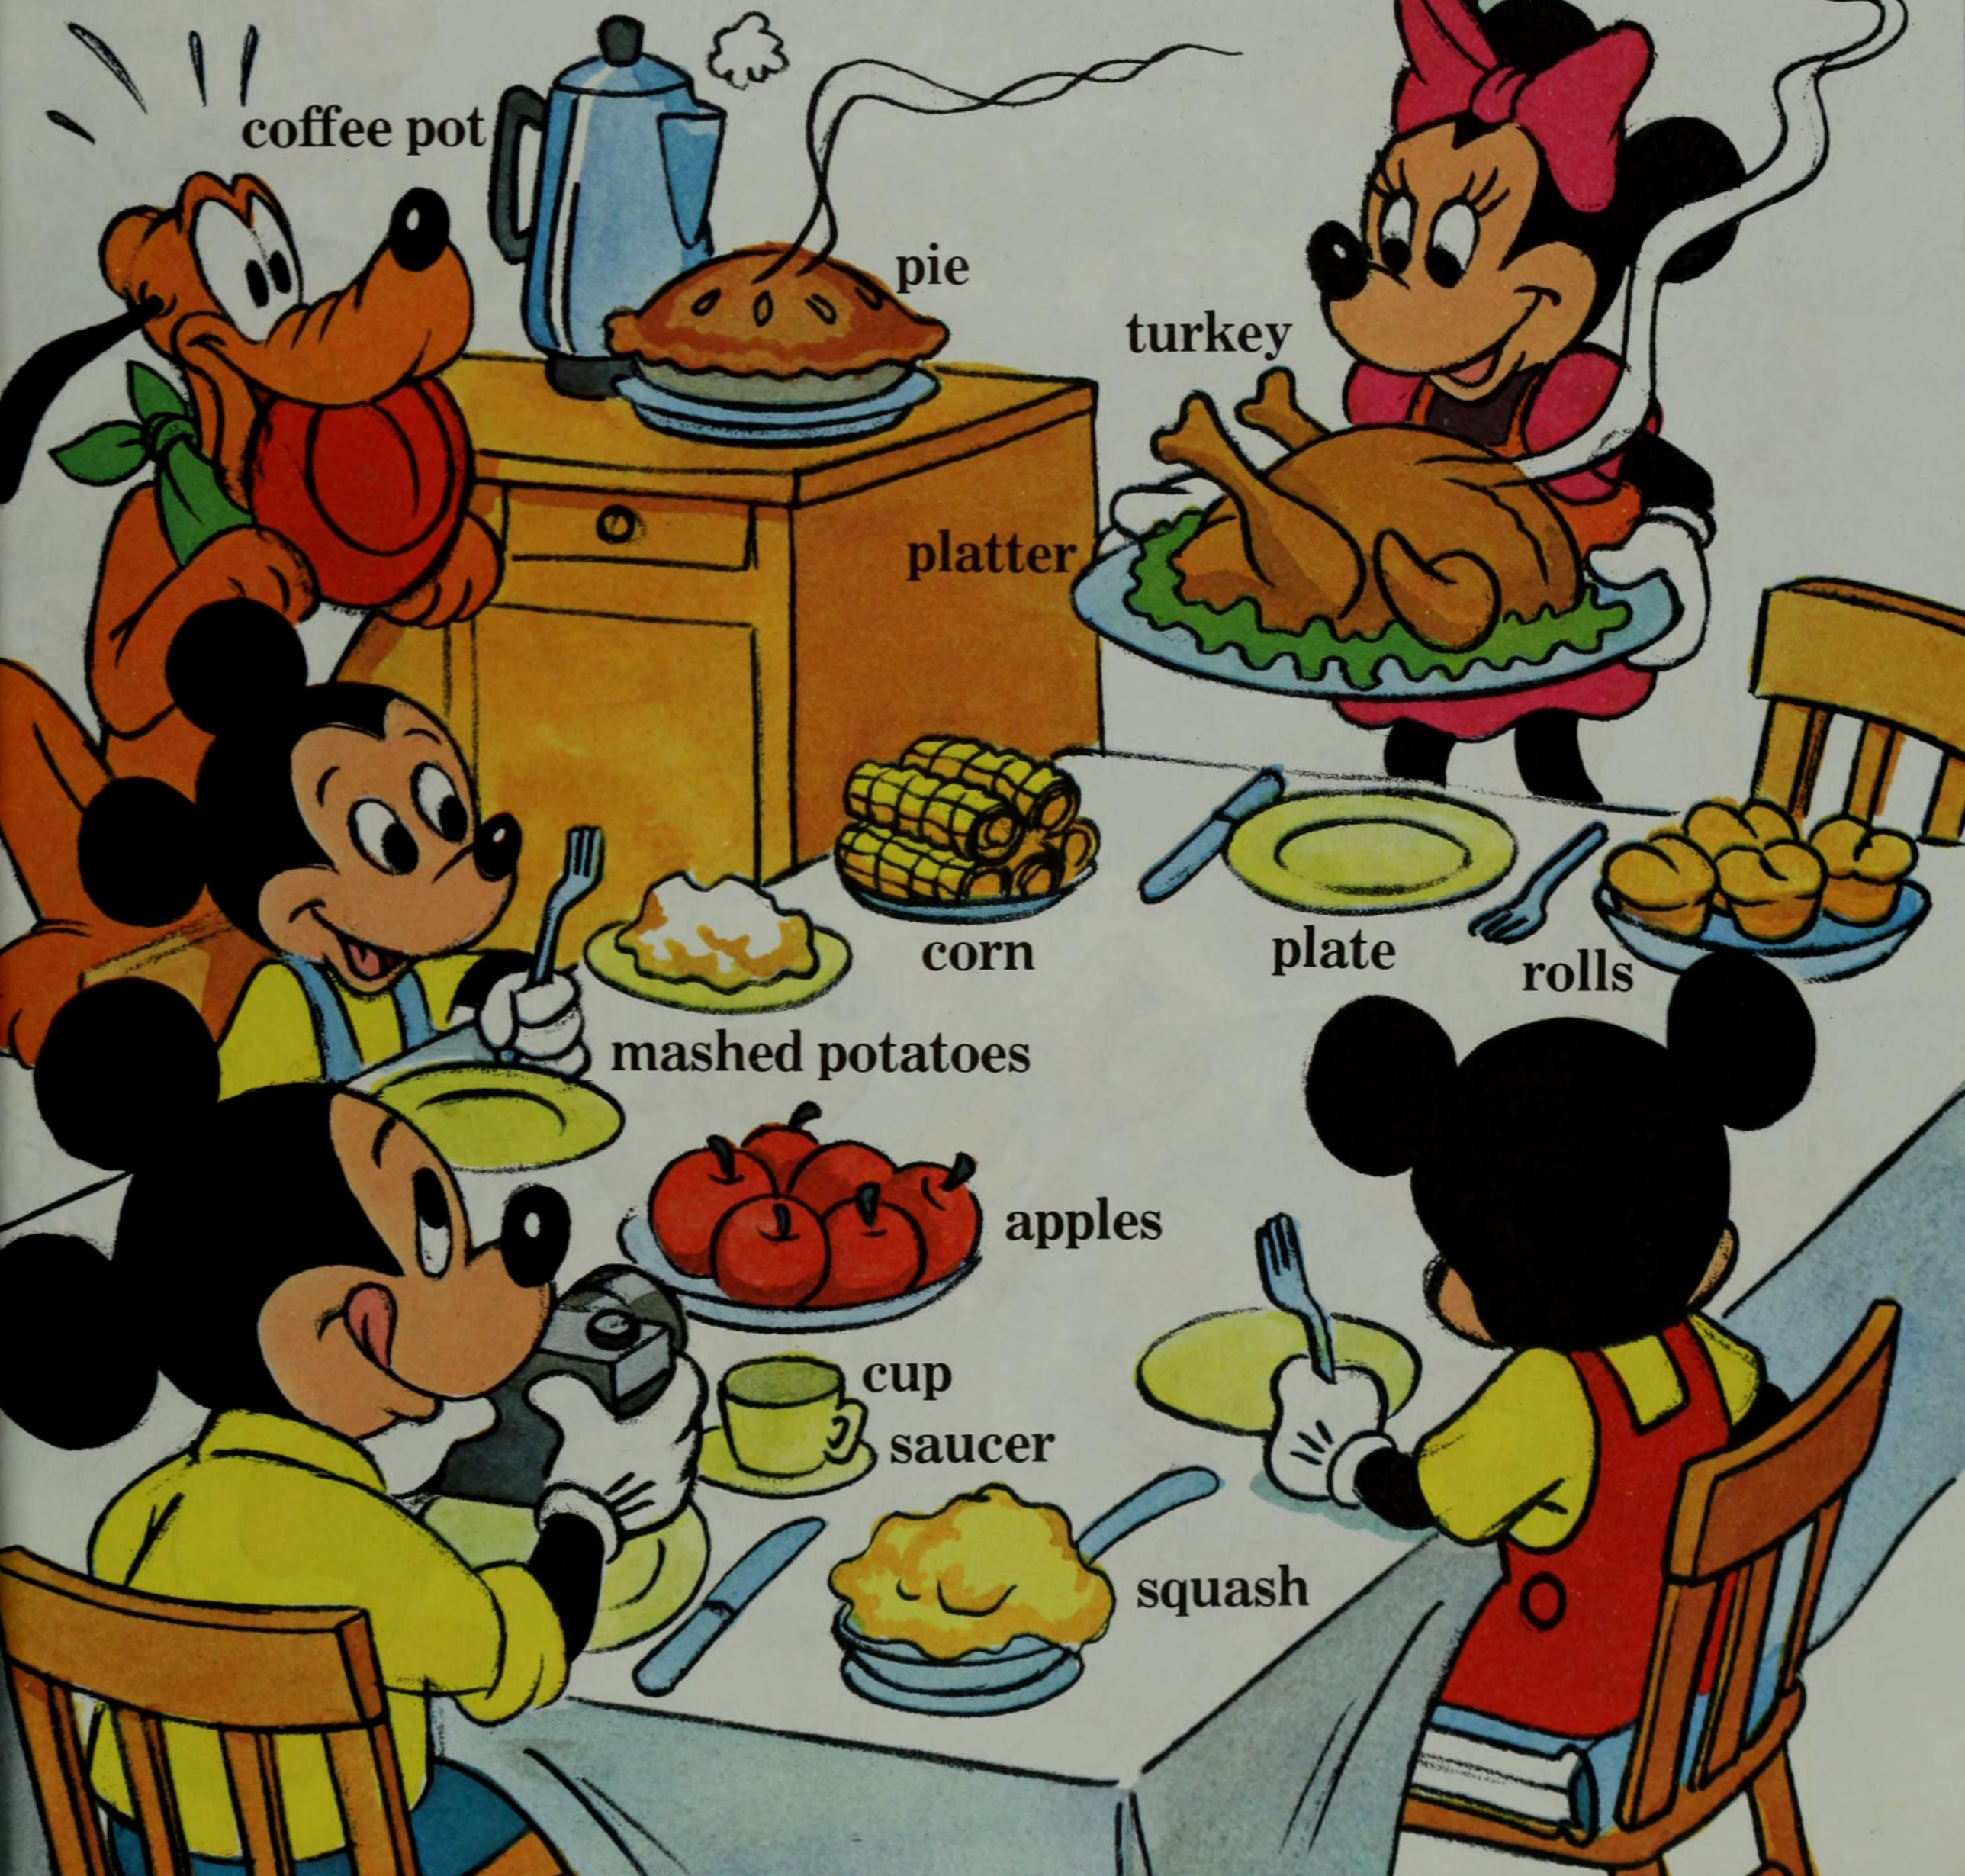
One of the best things about fall is Thanksgiving. "I hope you're hungry!" says Minnie. She has roasted a big turkey for Thanksgiving dinner. She has cooked other good things, too. Do you see some of your favorite foods?

Mickey and Morty and Ferdie can hardly wait to start eating—and Pluto is ready, too!



Winter

Brrrr! It's winter now, with cold and snow and ice and wind. But Goofy doesn't care—today he is practicing his skating.

"We like winter," says Huey and Louie and Dewey. "We like snowstorms and snowmen and—most of all!—we love Christmas!"
